GRAND RAPIDS, FEB. 18, 1885.

MINOR MICHIGAN MATTERS.

No tidings of the Michigan had yet been received yesterday.

A site for a Roman Catholic church has been secured at Pontiac.

The charity ball at Pontiac last Friday night netted a fund of $200.

The Congregational Church at Chesaning is still looking for a pastor.

The Niles Minstrels will give a charity concert in about two weeks.

Notwithstanding the cold weather numerous buildings are going up at Manistee.

Frear & Co's foundry at Battle Creek burned Saturday. Loss, $3,000; partially insured.

John Nott, an old and highly respected citizen of Trenton, died there on Sunday evening.

The brick for the new brick block to be erected at Farwell will be manufactured at that place.

Judge Russell, at Muskegon Saturday, overruled the motion for a change of venue in the Radley case.

Fire in North Lansing destroyed Frazell's bakery and Wheeler's saloon. The loss was $2,000; insurance, $2,000.

Joseph W. Francis, of Big Rapids, shipped five car-loads of potatoes direct from that city to New Orleans on Friday.

The Legislature is asked to allow the inmates of the girl's home at Adrian to be treated free at the University hospital.

Homer F. Linn, of Youngstown, Ohio, a medical student of the Michigan University, died at Ann Arbor on Sunday of pneumonia.

At Ceresco there is a locomotive upside down on the track of the Michigan & Ohio Railroad and a truck has been built around it.

The Rev. E. S. Curry, of Newberry, Chippewa county, has entered upon the practice of medicine in connection with his ministerial labors.

Some men delight in irony. One man in Port Huron is getting ready for the spring trade and on Monday bought a large stock of straw hats.

Flint has a committee of one for each ward at work soliciting aid for the poor. About $500 was subscribed at Saturday night's meeting.

St. Thomas's Roman Catholic Church at Ann Arbor has been remembered to the extent of $3,000 by a former pastor, Joseph Van Waterschoot.

The Saginaw Germans are opposed to the bill for discontinuing the teaching of the foreign languages unless one-half of the school district residents desire it.

The residence of Mrs. P. A. Bell, at Grand Lake, with its contents, was burned about 1 o'clock Sunday morning. The loss is about $800, covered by insurance.

Considerable lumbering is being done at Farwell. J. S. Estabrook, of Saginaw, is shipping 5,000,000 feet by rail to Saginaw, and N. & A. Barnard are putting in a heavy cut.

Marshall experienced the coldest day of the season Monday. At 7 p.m. the mercury stood at sixteen below and was descending rapidly, and the coal supply in the city was short.

The Rev. Anthony Dudley is said to have 800 acres of improved land in Highland, Oscoda county. This is the largest improvement owned by one person in the county, it is said.

The law students of the University are much elated over the Buhl donation of 5,000 volumes to the law library, and have drawn up a set of resolutions expressive of their gratitude.

The Ann Arbor law faculty has written a letter of thanks to C. H. Buhl, Esq. Hitherto their work had to be done by the aid of other lawyers, and the munificent gift was very acceptable.

The stock of H. Hinkle, of Farwell, dealer in lumberman's supplies, etc., who made an arrangement some months since, has been purchased by J. W. S. Odyke, and the doors opened Feb. 13.

Pat Fitzgerald, of Maple Valley, claims to have the champion three-year-old in America, and is ready to run her for $1,000 or $10,000 with any colt of her age in the country. He values her at $20,000.

The revival meetings at Kalamazoo are crowded every night. Major Whittle and Mr. McGraham say that it was not like starting a revival there—it was like being in the midst of a great awakening.

The wind blew open a door which struck against a burglar alarm in a house at Detroit on Monday morning. Upon the patrol wagon arriving search was made and the cause of the false alarm was found.

A fanatic by the name of Cargill made an unprovoked attack upon A. M. Taylor, a commercial traveler from Sturgis. They were at the Arlington Hotel, at Muskegon, when Cargill stabbed Taylor twice in the head. The wounds are not serious.

Last Friday night Robert Fourcoux, the agent of the Lewis Fire Extinguishing Company, in the suburbs of Battle Creek was set on fire by two firebrands who knocked him down and set a fire to a building at his head. He was rescued by a fireman, and the fire was extinguished.

Fire was discovered yesterday morning at Bay City in the residence of Mrs. W. L. Fay. The family was asleep, but escaped. The building was gutted. Most of the contents were destroyed, partly insured. It was fifteen below zero, and the firemen were severely frost-bitten.

Bay City's deep salt well has reached a depth of 2,335 feet. Hard limestone does not seem to be much of an impediment as the drill has gone into it ten feet and the work still continues. It is about time for the drill to strike the burning, seething, molten mass that geologists tell us is in the middle of the earth.

Love & Schofield, of Port Huron, have secured the contract to build a steel boiler for the propeller Koonoke, which is lying at Chicago. The boiler will be nine feet six inches in diameter and sixteen feet long. James Carey, also of Port Huron, has been engaged as engineer of the Koonoke for the season of 1885.

An accident occurred near Deer Oak Monday morning at 3:30. The night passenger train with two engines ran into a freight engine that was stuck in a snowdrift. The engines saved themselves by jumping. The three engines were badly wrecked. The passengers performed acrobatic feats, but none were injured.

The re-opening of the Presbyterian Church at Detroit last night took place on Sunday. The morning services consisted of the communion service, with the reception of new members. In the evening there were union services, the Methodist, Baptist and German Methodists uniting with them, and Rev. Geo. F. Waters preaching the dedicatory sermon.

"Wild" Thompson had a narrow escape from being killed in the Grand Trunk yard last Saturday afternoon. While checking a freight train, a cylinder of a passing engine struck him and he was knocked into a snow bank. Fortunately he escaped with slight bruises, but the engine sustained considerable damage by the collision.—Port Huron Times. It's a pretty tough man that can take a tumble with an engine and come off first best.

A large quantity of plaster fell from the ceiling of the Grand Trunk room at Port Huron Sunday night. If the jury had been sitting at the time considerable injury might have been done. It's very likely the city would not have kept it up for so long, for the plaster was in the edge of the room, for the board has allowed only $200 for overhauling the building and the sky can be seen through the roof in two or three places.—Port Huron Times.

OUT OF TOWN TALK.

Items Gathered by a "Telegram" Correspondent at Wayland.

Correspondence of THE TELEGRAM.

Wayland, Feb. 17.—When will this horrible cold weather end? is the salutation most frequently heard on our streets as passing pedestrians peek out from their mantles to see how the day is passing. Thirty degrees was the upper dispatch on H. B. Clark's thermometer near the depot on Friday morning last. No more dispatches wanted. This indicates good by peaches in this section. Shortly after D. T. Hersey built a fire in his stove Monday morning a loud explosion took place in the stove, and on looking around to see what the trouble was he noticed through the chimney that the pipe passed through into the loft above that the upper room was filled with smoke. The loft over his store is reached only by a ladder on the outside, and on going up there he found two lengths of the pipe taken off and set up about six inches from the place where it came up through the floor. From the floor to the elbow that passes into the chimney required three lengths of pipe, and the two top lengths had been taken off and set down carefully, as there was no soot on the floor to indicate that it fallen. Nothing else was disturbed in the room; outside the storm had covered up all tracks. The discovery was a mere accident, but for which a conflagration would have ensued very soon.—Some of the boys have been proving the power of cold iron to hold a person's tongue, and yesterday afternoon, while the mercury was ten degrees below zero, little George Ryno tried it upon the iron railing in front of Hazlett's store. When his mouth gets well he can tell all about it.—John Turner went home to Orangeville on Saturday, and of course was snowed in.—Ex-Judge Padghin and family, of Allegan, spent the Sabbath with friends here, and found himself in the same fix yesterday.—Quite a number of others have been having lung attacks when convalescing are severely troubled with neuralgia.—The snow is three feet on a level.

A PERSISTENT LAWYER.

How He Scanned His Motion by Repeatedly Interrupting the Court.

"Persistence is also a good quality for a lawyer to have sometimes," continued my friend. "A good many years ago I was trying an important jury case in this city. One morning, during the progress of the trial, the errier had made his usual announcement, concluding with 'all persons having business with this court may now draw near, and they shall be heard,' when a young drawing country gawk of a lawyer who had a case jumped up and said: 'May it please your honor, I wish to make a motion that the case of So-and-so go by default.'"

"But," responded the Judge, 'there is another trial now in progress; present your claims at the proper time and you shall be heard. Proceed with your case Mr. —' (turning to me.)

The young lawyer sat down. In a few minutes, as soon as I stopped to take breath, he jumped up again and said:

"May it please your honor, I wish to make a motion—"

"Sir," interrupted the Judge, 'there is a trial going on here; and we can not afford to interrupt it for you. Sit down.'

Again he resumed his seat. In a few minutes up he jumped again. 'I wish to make a motion, your honor.'

The Judge was fairly boiling over with rage by this time. 'Sit down!' he thundered. The seat was again meekly resumed.

Well, the trial went on for an hour without interruption. When I stopped to take a minute's rest at the end of this time, I heard the same drawing voice commence: 'May it please your honor—'

"Sir, your motion is granted," said his honor, somewhat fiercely. Mr. — (turning to me) go on with your case."—Boston Gazette.

A PUSS WITH A GREAT HEAD.

How a Smart Connecticut Tabby Thwarted a Terrible Plot.

There were three cats in a Williams street family, and the lady of the house concluded that one was sufficient to do all the business, and an edict of death was passed on the old cat and her kitten. The question of the manner of death was settled, and the chloroform purchased. Days passed after the chloroform was in the house before the executioner could muster courage to execute the sentence. To facilitate matters the lady thought that some laudanum added to the cat's milk would produce a stupor that would make the chloroforming more easy. The drug was put in the milk and tendered the old cat. She tasted the food, cast her eyes suspiciously about her and refused to eat. The kitten rushed to the dish to partake of the milk and was violently knocked away by the old cat, who took a corner of a mat and covered over the dish to hide it from the kitten and prevent her from taking the "medicine."

The lady could not believe it possible that the act was intentional on the part of the cat, and uncovered the dish and again tendered the milk to her. She again knocked the kitten from the dish and covered it over more carefully than before. This repetition of the protective act gained the good will of the lady and she gave up killing the cats. She can not satisfy her mind, however, whether the action of the cat was prompted by instinct or reason.—Norwich (Conn.) Bulletin.

—The citizens of Northern California are devising measures for attracting immigration to that part of the State. A conference of leading residents was held at Sacramento during the State fair for the purpose of forming an organization which shall make a business to its emigrate to that State in order to attract desirable settlers.

—There is a curious coincidence in the birth and death of two children, named Calverine and Edward Quinn, who were buried in North Adams, Mass., recently. The father and mother died of consumption. The children were both born on the same day of the month two years apart, Calverine being thirteen and Edward fifteen years of age at the time of the death of the father on the same day and were buried at the same time.—Boston Herald.

A LOVER'S SUICIDE.

A Disconsolate Cat Who Went to Join His Dead Mistress in the Cat's Paradise.

Some time ago we were without a cat, and the mice were evidently getting "the upper hand," and required the upper paw of a puss to keep them within bounds. At this important domestic juncture a friend offered us a fine French kitten, which we accepted. Her coat was a very delicate and nicely marked tabby and she was a lively and promising animal.

But it soon became evident that she differed very considerably in character and disposition from the English cat. Her predatory powers were extreme, her agility amazing, and nothing edible could be kept out of her reach. Like Cowper's Frenchman, she was "both debonnaire and brisk," and was in the habit of helping herself to forbidden food, or, in other words, of "taking French leave." Our cooked meat was kept on a shelf suspended from the cellar ceiling, and no cat had ever before been known to set foot on that shelf. But "Fuzz" was more clever than her predecessors, and was caught thereon in the act of regaling herself on a cold leg of mutton. Various contrivances were resorted to in order to frustrate her future designs, but she was equal to every occasion, and surmounted all obstacles with ease. What, then, was to be done? The matter was taken into consideration, and a sentence of aqueous immersion was passed upon her. The sentence was carried into execution, and the remains were taken into the garden for interment; but as the ground was frozen, they were put into the harbor, there to await the breaking up of the frost. A day or two after this, walking down the garden toward the spot, I perceived a strange cat, darker in coat, but a tabby also, sitting in an apparently comfortable position, close to the remains of poor Fuzz. On approaching nearer I was surprised to find that it did not attempt to move, and, on a still closer inspection, I perceived that the cat was dead. This animal had been an admirer of Fuzz, and, having found her lifeless body, had placed himself by its side, and remained there until he was frozen to death. I at once dug a hole in the ground, placed them both therein, and erected a tombstone of slate at the head of it, bearing the following inscription: "Requiescat in pace."—Leisure Hours.

THE HOG.

The Missing Link Between Man and the Animals, but Not an Artistic Success.

The hog, studied from an artistic point of view, is a dismal failure, but viewed in the light of a long-felt want he looms up a pre-eminent and lasting success.

The origin of this bird is lost in antiquity (whatever that may be), but that he is the long-sought missing link between man and the higher animals there can be no doubt. We say higher animals, but do not interpret too literally. A man can get higher than any quadruped known to science, if properly educated and furnished with the right brand of liquor, but he can and does get lower than any animal that breathes the breath of life. In many respects a man is just like a hog, only more so—no offense to the hog. A hog is bull-headed and stubborn—so is a man. He likes to have his back scratched—so does a man. He can get his two hundred pounds of avoirdupois through a hole that a bantam rooster couldn't find with an opera glass—so can a man, if he happens to be a politician and up to snuff.

The very thing a hog is expected to do is the very thing he don't do and couldn't be hired to do with four dollars and a silver-plated swill-trough. When he gets into the flower garden, instead of walking around and enjoying the sweet perfume of flowers he imagines he has a special call to solve the Chinese question, and starts for that far off kingdom by a direct route through the pansy bed. When he is about half way there a very mad woman causes him to change his mind, and he starts on a tour of inspection. She drives him up to the gate and makes a wild rush at him with a broom in order to add eclat to the finish. She adds it. The hog looks at the gate as if he thought of buying it, and then with a noise like ripping up eight miles of plank sidewalk, he makes a rush in the opposite direction, and the air is full of striped stockings and embroidery. Then the woman cries, goes into the house and puts some court-plaster where it will do the most good, and gives a boy a quarter to get the hog out of the garden. The boy drives him the other way, and the hog whirls and goes through the gate with a grunt of triumph.—Minneapolis Bazaar.

Chameleon Hair.

The hair of a young girl who died at the age of fifteen in an insane asylum of Hamburg is reported to have shown alterations of color coinciding with periodical changes in the patient's mental and physical condition. Besides epileptic fits, it was noticed that she experienced while in the asylum quite regular alternations of excitement and sadness, each of about a week's duration; and that the color of her hair was red during each period of agitation, while it became blonde in her quiet intervals, a complete change of tint taking place in two or three days.—Arkansas Traveler.

—Sleepless people, says Health and Home, should count the sun. The very worst soporific is laudanum, and the very best is sunshine. Therefore it is plain that the poor sleepers should pass as many hours of the day in the sunshine and as few in the shade as possible. The injurious effects of the shade is very noticeable in plants growing in secluded places and ladies who are accustomed to carry sunshades. The invigorating power of sunlight is infinite, and he whose skin is twice seldom requires a pill.

—Callow youth (before looking glass, as he looked at chin) "I think I must get a razor." Sister: "Do, Will. Get a brand razor."—Golden Days.

Read What Van's Magic Oil or King of Pain Has Done for the People.

We have used Van's Magic Oil for internal and external applications, in cases of Colic, Cholera, Burns, Bruises, etc., and find none better. It is especially adapted to children, as it can be used with safety and satisfaction, and we earnestly recommend it to parents.

Muskegon, Sept. 31, 1884.
J. W. EDDY.

I have used Van's Magic Oil for Neuralgia, and it has proved to be satisfactory, as it has cured me entirely, also our next door neighbor was cured by it, Josiah K. Kirt, by internal use for Sore Throat, combined with a severe Cough and Hoarseness; also a man by the name of Stoffe Wintemute was cured by it of a very severe Lane back, it can never say too much in praise of your Magic Oil.

Grand Haven, April 25, 1884.
Yours truly,
JACOB DESELDERS.

We have used your Magic Oil for several years, and would not like to be without it, as it is a good family medicine, viz: Burns, Bruises, Sore Throat, Colic, etc., hence I truly recommend it to the public.

REV. E. VANDERBEEK,
Patterson, N. J., Feb. 11, 1884.

Muskegon, Mich.

MR. N. G. VANDERBEEK.—We have used your Magic Oil with great satisfaction. One of our children was taken sick with (so-called) diphtheria. Of course we employed a doctor, but the child grew worse every day. One morning, the doctor called with four more of his profession, and consulted. If the child would be alive in the evening they were to open the child's throat and cut the pharynx out. This I did not approve of, but as there was no hope of the child's recovery, I consented. Finally our neighbor, Mrs. F. Vanderbark, called with a bottle of your Magic Oil, and asked if we would use it—it would cost us nothing. We gave the child three or five drops internally every hour, and positioned the sides of its feet with ointment and bled its throat, with Magic Oil, and when the doctor came in the evening he wanted to know what we had given the child, as he breathed so much easier. I told him we used Van's Magic Oil. He said keep right on using it as that was better than he could do. I have thanked Mrs. Vanderbark a thousand times for her kindness, and I sincerely thank you for your valuable medicine. Yours truly,
MRS. A. D. PAINE.

Van's Magic Oil or King of Pain is manufactured by N. G. Vanderbark, Muskegon, Mich., and is sold by all dealers.
